INTRODUCTION

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NATIONAL REFERRAL MECHANISM FOR THE PROTECTION OF HUMAN TRAFFICKING VICTIMS (JANUARY - DECEMBER 2023)

The present Report for the year 2023 includes the data extracted by the Reporting Forms and the Protection Services Monitoring Forms¹ for the period from 1/1/2023 until 31/12/2023, submitted to the National Referral Mechanism for the Protection of Human Trafficking Victims (NRM) from January 1st, 2023 to January 31st, 2024, by the participating Actors.

The graph below shows the number of cases, as reported during the five-year NRM operation, i.e. from 2019 to 2023, showing the increasing trend of the last two years:

During that period, the NRM management team in EKKa, within the framework of the implementation of the Project "Strengthening the operation of the National Referral Mechanism for the Protection of Human Trafficking Victims" (National Programme of the European Internal Security Fund - Police Cooperation Sector for the period 2014-2020) proceeded with:

1. The publication of the Practical Guide for Frontline Professionals on Detection and Protection of Human Trafficking Victims and its dissemination to all NRM's integrated actors.
2. The re-publication of the updated INFORMATION LEAFLET on HUMAN TRAFFICKING in 5 languages (Greek, English, Bulgarian, French and Romanian), and its publication in 7 new languages: (Albanian, Arabic, Urdu, Bengali, Ukrainian, Russian and Farsi).
3. The mailing of the NRM Handbooks to Health Units and Municipality Community Centres throughout the country, to support professionals in their work.

¹Through the Protection Services' Monitoring Forms, the Reporting Actors inform EKKa every 4 months on the services (type, duration etc.) delivered to each victim who has been integrated in the mechanism and provided either by the Actor itself or by other collaborating Actors, after a referral.

Throughout the year, the training activities on the NRM tools and operational procedures were ongoing, either independently or within the framework of other stakeholders' activities, as presented in the Annex. These activities, aimed at combating human trafficking, were implemented by governmental and non-governmental actors within the reference year, and aimed at raising awareness in the general public, training professionals and protecting victims, additionally to their main work.

It is worth mentioning the large number of partnerships between Actors for the implementation of such actions. In this way, the importance of cooperation among different Actors' professionals during the exercise of their duties, is recognised for the greater effectiveness of interventions within the framework of the NRM operation.

The data included in the present report regard victims that were either detected within 2023 (new cases), or/ and kept receiving protection services (as trafficking victims) during the reporting period.

The data were derived from:

- a. the reports regarding trafficking victims that were detected and/or received protection services in the country from January 1st 2023 until December 31st 2023, and which amount to five hundred and thirty-three (533) cases, as well as
- b. the procedure of monitoring the cases of the victims that were reported to the NRM within 2019², 2020³, 2021⁴ and 2022⁵, and kept receiving services during the reporting period (2023). During 2023, two hundred and twenty-two (222) cases of the last four years remained open as they continued to receive protection services. In Part A of this report brief data of these cases are presented.

² The 2019 report is available at: NRM REPORT 2019

³ The 2020 report is available at: NRM REPORT 2020

⁴ The 2021 report is available at: NRM REPORT 2021

⁵ The 2022 report is available at: NRM REPORT 2022

It should be reminded that human trafficking victims⁶ are reported to the Mechanism, regardless of whether trafficking took place within or outside Greece, as well as of the time the offence was perpetrated. The main goal of the report to the NRM is the depiction of the protection services provided to each presumed or officially declared human trafficking victim, in a way that ensures the most complete protection possible.

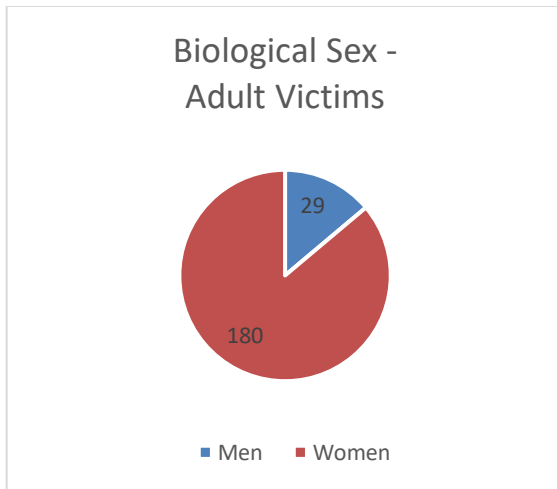

According to the NRM Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs), following the receipt of a reporting Form and provided that the adult victim has given consent to be registered in the NRM⁷, E.K.K.A. provides a Registry Number and monitors the case, not only to capture the referrals and services provided, but also to ensure the continuity and sufficiency of these services.

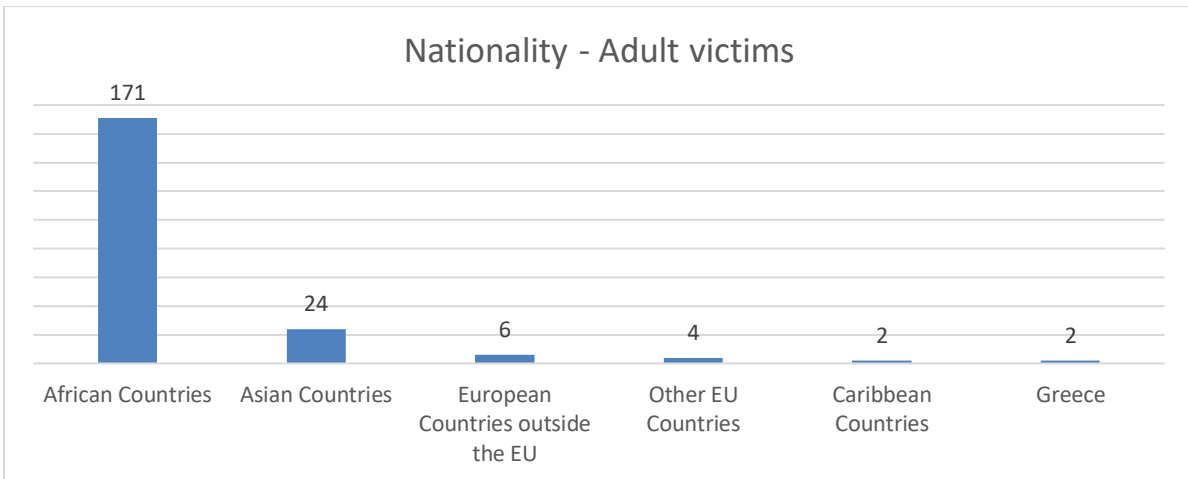

⁶ Including those who were granted human trafficking status with the issuance of an order by the Public Prosecutor and those in whose history there are elements that at least one act of trafficking with at least one means has taken place (not in the case of children), with the purpose of - not necessarily having started - their exploitation (presumed victims).

PART A: VICTIMS OF HUMAN TRAFFICKING WHO CONTINUED TO RECEIVE SERVICES IN 2023

As already mentioned, a total of two hundred and twenty-two (222) cases of the last four years remained open during 2023, and include two hundred and nine (209) adults and thirteen (13) children (8 of them unaccompanied) victims of human trafficking. The demographic data of the victims reported to the NRM in 2019, 2020, 2021 and 2022 that continued receiving services in 2023, are depicted in the following graphs:

The countries of Africa, where adult victims come from, include: Ethiopia, Ivory Coast, Ghana, Eritrea, Somalia, Togo, Cameroon, DR Congo, Gambia, Burkina Faso, Mauritania, Nigeria, Uganda, Kenya, Mali, Congo, Senegal, Guinea, Morocco and Sierra Leone. Countries of Asia include: Pakistan, Afghanistan, Iran, Syria and Bangladesh. From Caribbean countries and more specifically from the Dominican Republic there were two (2) victims. Four (4) victims come from Romania (other EU countries). The victims from European countries outside the EU come from Moldova and Albania.

Child victims from other EU countries originate from Bulgaria while in the category “countries outside EU” Albania is included. Asian countries include Pakistan and Iran, while children from Africa come from Ivory Coast and Somalia.

Overall, open cases from earlier years, as expected, decrease over time. These cases are 3 from 2019, 7 from 2020, 12 from 2021 and 200 from 2022.

The services that victims kept receiving during 2023 are the following:

The range of services that adult victims keep receiving, shows their multi-level needs, as well as the long period needed for those to be covered. However, it is certain, that the services, even regarded as of 1st level, do not aim over time to cover urgent needs, but they are redefined in order to support the victims during their social integration. To achieve this, emphasis is placed on learning the Greek language and finding a job.

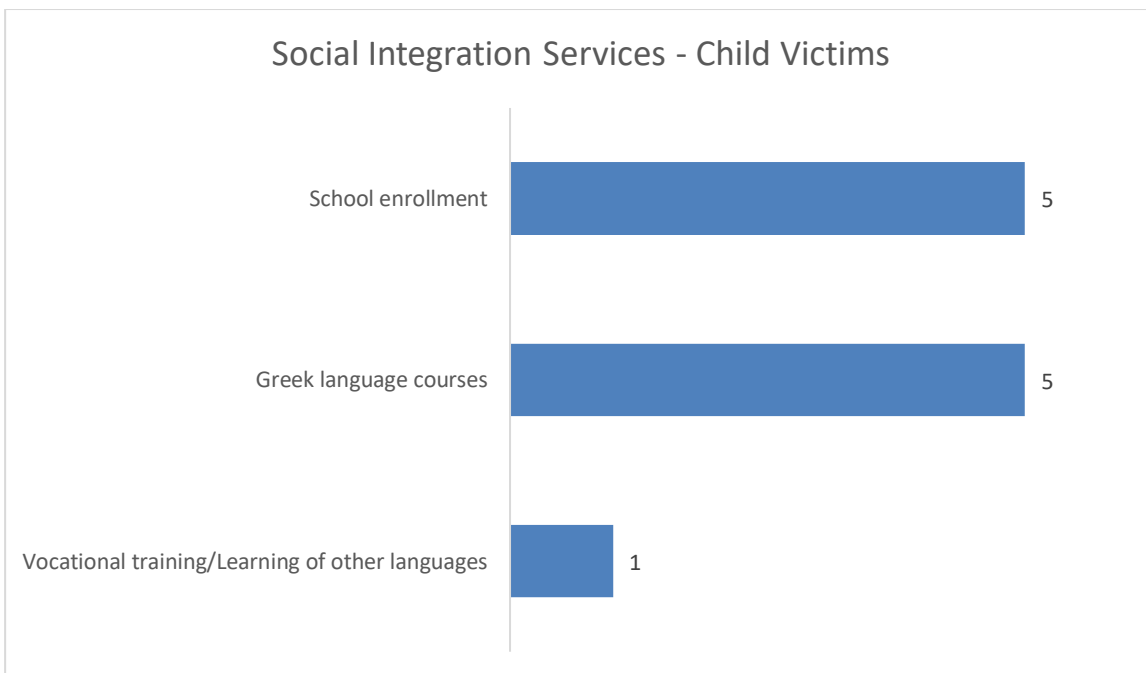

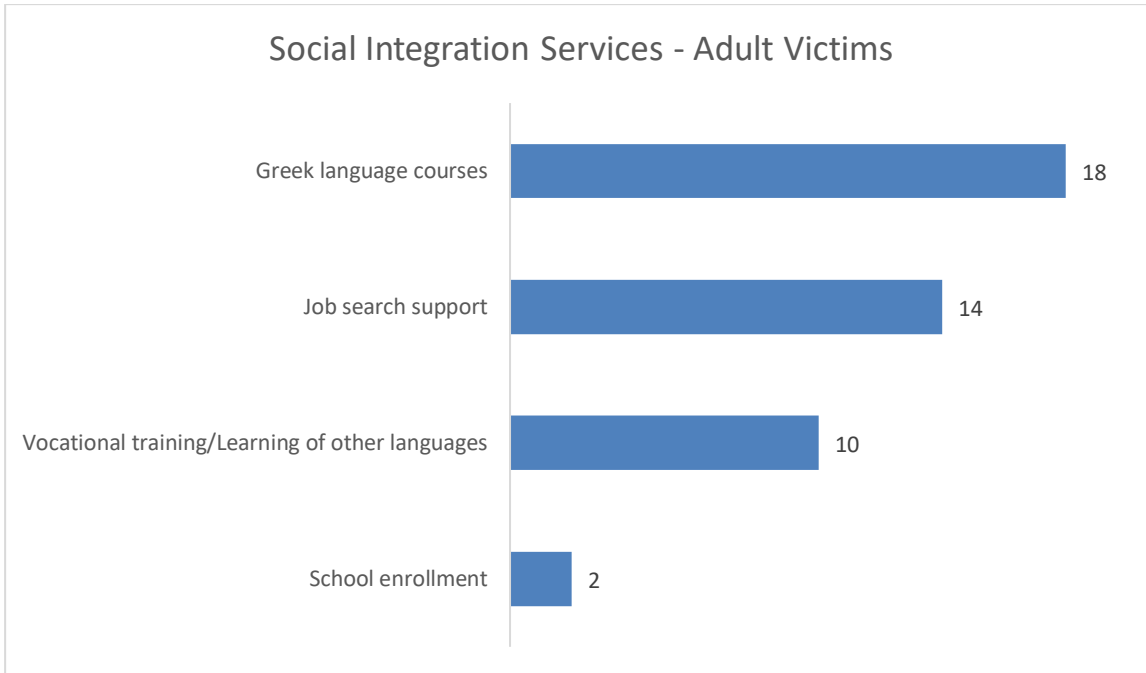

With regard to accommodation, in more than half of the cases of victims that are still receiving this service, this continues in asylum seeker accommodation facilities of RIS (islands and mainland), which highlights the need to strengthen the provision of services with the aim of social integration of the victims after they are identified in the facilities.

As regards child victims, the services they continue to receive during 2023 - based on their current needs - are accommodation, social support including assistance with bureaucratic or other necessary legal procedures aiming at their social integration, access to formal education and Greek lessons.

Many services are provided to the victim escorted by a professional, in order to ensure or facilitate the access to those services. Escort was provided in five (5) cases of social support, in seven (7) cases during legal representation and in twenty-eight (28) cases to ensure access to medical care. It seems that the professionals regard escorting to health care units as necessary, mainly for the facilitation of the communication with the medical staff – especially when interpretation is not available and in order to settle possible procedural issues (scheduling a new appointment etc.).

Finally, there were two (2) cases of safe and voluntary return of adult victims registered during the previous years, in addition to one (1) case of an adult victim's resettlement to a third country.

Regarding the victims' legal status, according to most recent updates received by the NRM partners, one hundred and forty (140) of those reported as asylum seekers in previous years were granted international protection status within 2023, not necessarily on the grounds that they have been human trafficking victims though, whereas in thirty-four (34) of those cases victims are currently lacking legal documentation. At the same time, there have been eight (8) cases where victims applied for international protection during the reporting period (2023) and their claim is currently being examined.

Thirteen (13) victims of those reported to the NRM in previous years were granted human trafficking victim status (according to an official procedure which entails the issuance of an order by the Public Prosecutor) during the reporting period. Of those cases, four (4) received victim status by the submission of a written opinion, as provided for by law in the context of the so-called social path alternative (please refer to section VII. below), whereas the rest of the cases refer to victims who filed a report on the offence before the Hellenic Police. One (1) case involved an unaccompanied child⁸ who reached adulthood within 2023.

In seventeen (17) cases reported to the NRM in previous years, victims participated in criminal proceedings in relation to the offence of human trafficking during the reporting period. Of those cases, two (2) were subject to preliminary examination, six (6) were in pre-trial stage, five (5) were pending first-instance hearing -in two (2) of which perpetrators were prosecuted on the grounds of criminal offences other than that of human trafficking-, one (1) was pending second-instance hearing, while three (3) led to a conviction. It is to be noted that three (3) cases referred to child victims (two (2) of which were unaccompanied children) when criminal proceedings were initiated; those victims have now reached adulthood.

Finally, in two (2) cases reported victims themselves were prosecuted on the grounds of criminal offences committed by them while being under exploitation.⁹

⁸ The term “unaccompanied children” (referred to as unaccompanied minors in law) refers to foreign nationals or stateless persons, below the age of 18, who arrive on the Hellenic territory unaccompanied by a parent or guardian or other relative being responsible for caring for them, and for as long as they are not effectively taken into care of such a person by law (Law No 4939/2022).

⁹ The relevant information has been gathered by reports received from victims' legal counsellors working in NGOs included in the NRM partners.

PART B: 2023 NEW CASES

The number of reports sent to NRM during the year 2023 reached five hundred and sixty-one (561), which correspond to five hundred and thirty-three (533) cases, since twenty-eight (28) of those were reported by two Actors. The reports were sent from Services of the Public Sector (437), as well as from Actors of Civil Society and International Organisations (124).

The main trend captured is the significant increase in the number of identified victims of human trafficking exploited within the Greek territory (160 in total), compared to previous years. From these, approximately 2/3 (99 cases) are victims identified by the Hellenic Police, in the context of organised operations to dismantle organised criminal groups of human trafficking that were (also) operating in Greece. Specifically, these are cases of criminal organisations whose members are both Greek and foreign nationals, with the latter operating mainly abroad, aiming to recruit victims, while the exploitation seems to have taken place exclusively in Greece. All cases include women victims. The majority of them originate from South American countries and were sexually exploited.

It is worth mentioning that twenty-five (25) cases concern victims of the extensive operation of an organised criminal group with the purpose of ova removal and surrogacy exploitation, who were identified and rescued while being under exploitation. The majority of victims came from Eastern European countries.

The use of technology by the perpetrators was also recorded as a growing trend, mainly during the stage of recruitment, i.e. the initial approach to the victims, with reference to social media, such as Facebook and Instagram, while cases of pornography of minors were reported, where exclusively electronic means were used during the exploitation stage, for the creation, dissemination and/or possession of the relevant material.

Finally, Türkiye, as a transit destination country in the context of migration/refugee flows to Europe, is still frequently recorded as a place of recruitment and/or exploitation of victims. It is also worth mentioning the high number of victims originating from Sierra Leone (almost 1/3), who have been recruited outside their country of origin, namely in Guinea.

1. DEMOGRAPHICS OF TRAFFICKING VICTIMS – NEW CASES 2023

I. Gender

Out of the total number of new cases – five hundred and thirty-three (533) – in the year 2023, four hundred and thirty-three (433) concern adult victims and one hundred (100) children. Sixty-two (62) of those children were unaccompanied, twenty-five (25) boys and thirty-seven (37) girls.

The graphs below depict the gender of the victims as assigned at birth.

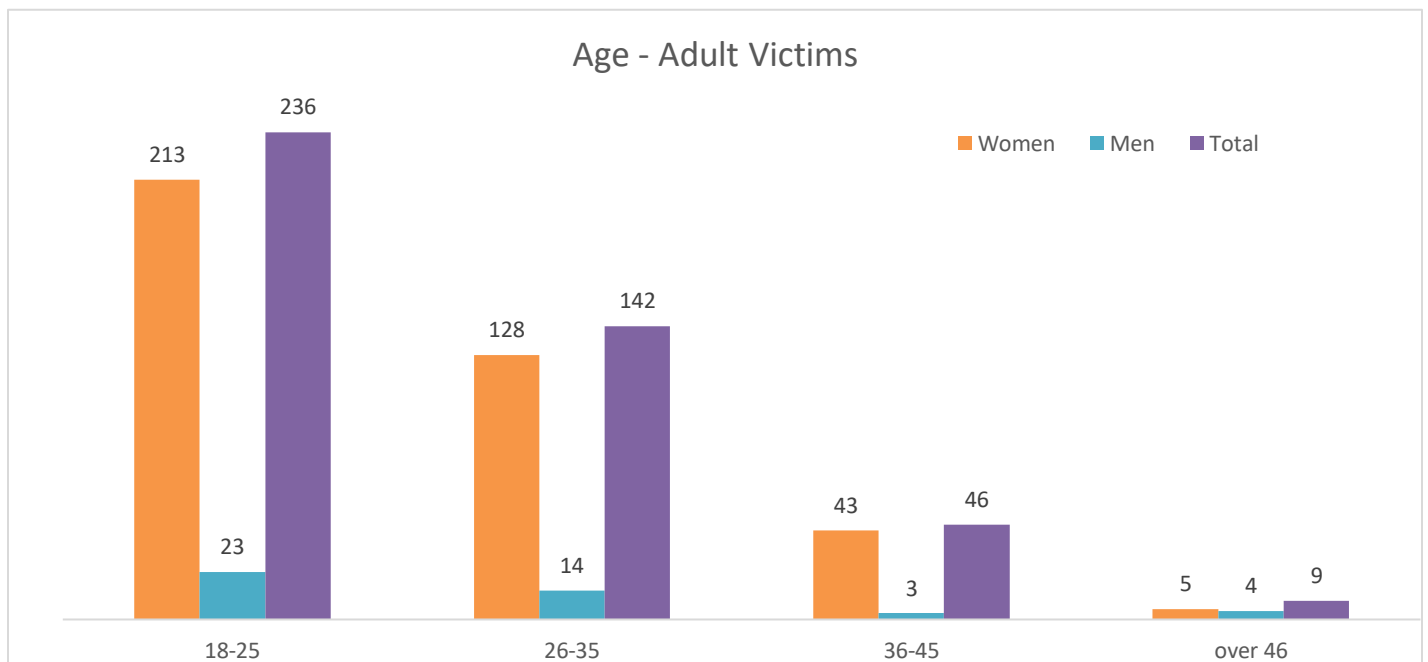

As can be seen from the graphs, four hundred and forty-nine (449) new cases concern women and girls and eighty-four (84) men and boys. As a result, the trend that appears confirms the gender dimension of the phenomenon, as recorded at a global level as well.¹⁰

II. Age

In terms of age, the majority of adult victims is under 25 years old while out of one hundred (100) children twelve (12) were reported to be under 6 years old.

One (1) unaccompanied child, reported as under 12 years of age, entered Greece together with a relative who was also a minor.

Age - Unaccompanied Child Victims

III. Nationality

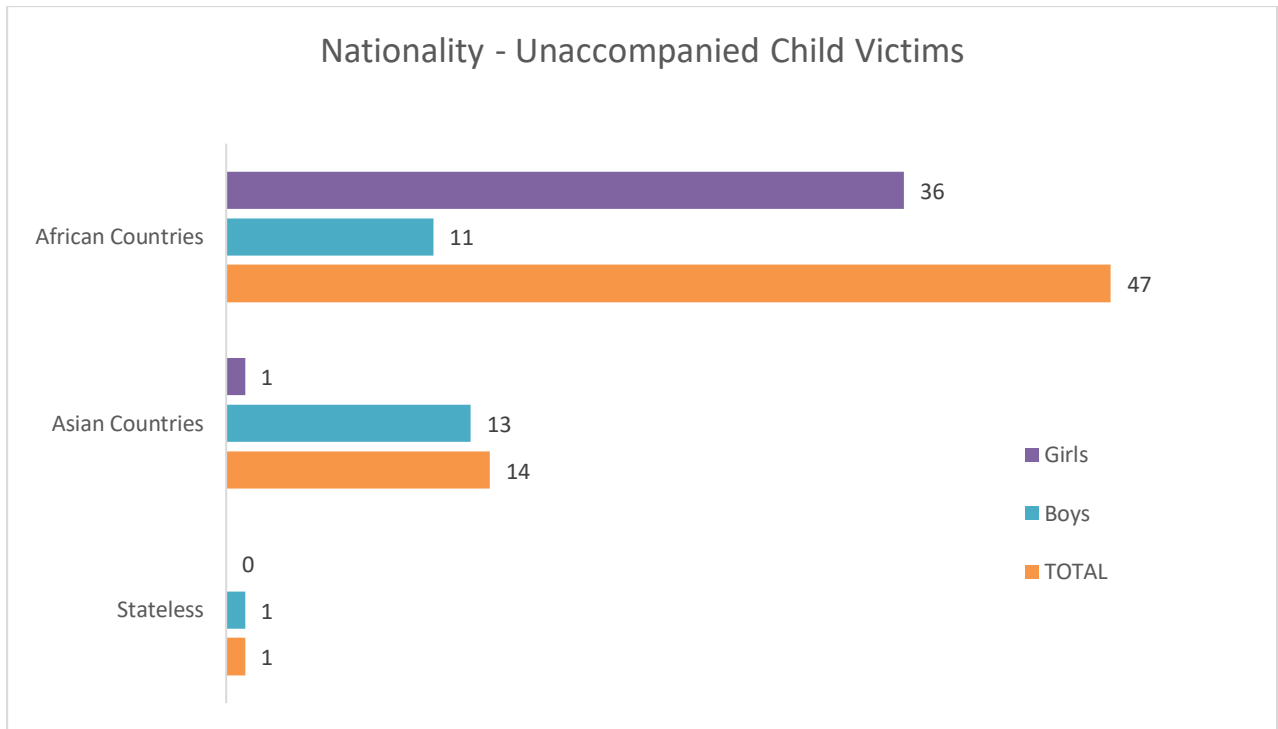

As regards the nationality of adult victims, African countries include Sierra Leone (93), Cameroon (47), Eritrea (40), Democratic Republic of Congo (36), Somalia (32), Guinea (10), Ethiopia (8), Angola (2), Ivory Coast (3), Gambia (2), Ghana (3), Gabon, Kenya, Liberia, Mali, Morocco, Mauritania, Nigeria and Uganda. Asian countries include Pakistan (7), Afghanistan (5), India, Bangladesh, Nepal, Uzbekistan, Syria and Yemen. Victims from non-EU European countries come from Albania (9), Georgia (14), Moldova (3) and Ukraine (1). Victims from another EU country come from Bulgaria (3) and Romania (5). South American countries include Venezuela (14), Brazil (2) and Colombia (54).

In the case of child victims, African countries include Somalia (25), Sierra Leone (12), Democratic Republic of Congo (5), Guinea, Republic of Congo, Nigeria, Egypt and Angola. Asian countries include Syria, Afghanistan, Pakistan and Bangladesh. Three (3) cases of children from Romania were reported, while children from European countries outside the EU were not reported.

The majority of unaccompanied children are from Somalia (19 girls and 6 boys), followed by twelve (12) children from Sierra Leone (10 girls and 2 boys), from Pakistan (seven (7) boys), Bangladesh, the Democratic Republic of Congo, Guinea, Nigeria, Egypt and Syria. Finally, a stateless unaccompanied child, originating from Palestine, was reported.

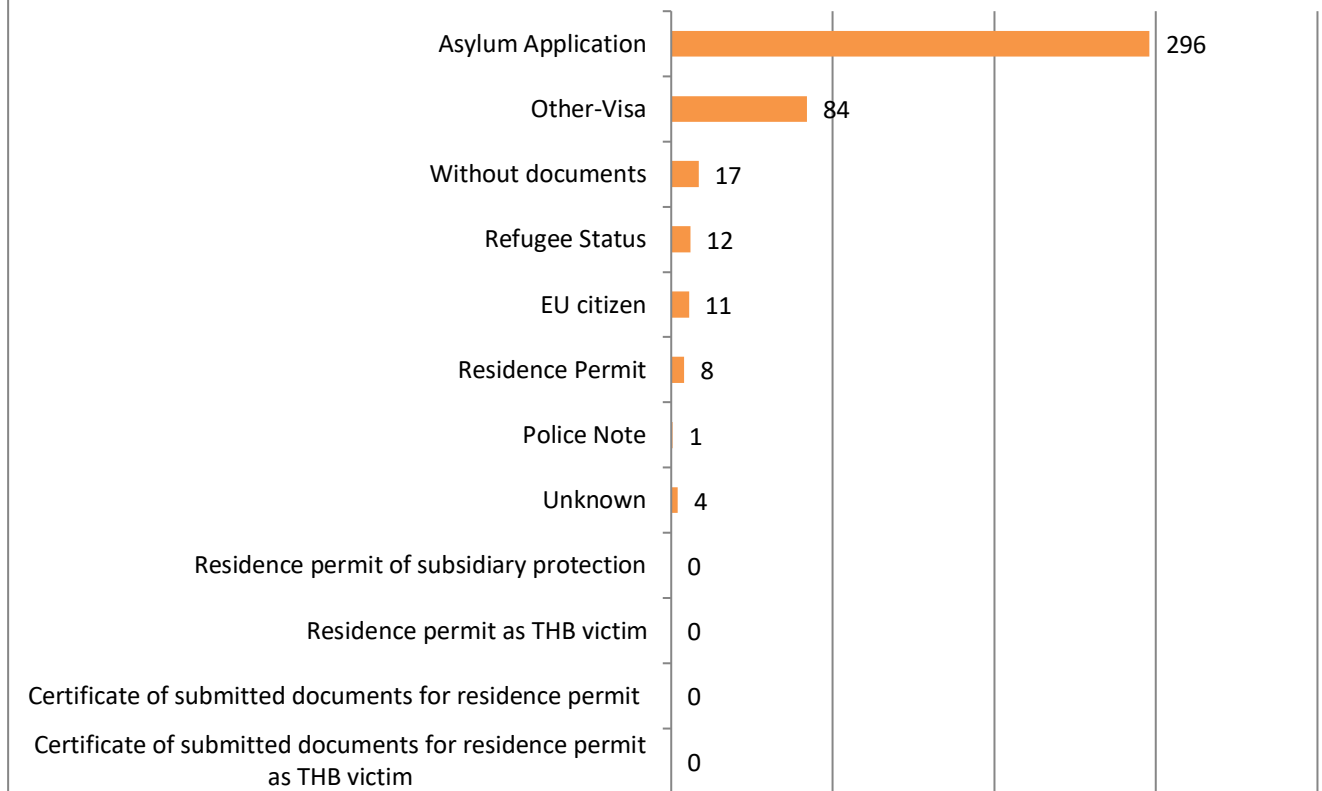

IV. Residence status

The vast majority of adult victims registered to the NRM, currently receiving protection services, have applied for asylum and is awaiting the examination of their claim. The high number of asylum applicants reported is related to the standardised psychosocial assessment that is carried out within the Reception and Identification Centres and the Closed Controlled Access Centres in Aegean Islands, as well as the stable and active participation of the Asylum Service in the NRM.

The majority of adult victims, two hundred and fifty-eight (258) women and thirty-eight (38) men, while they were identified and reported to the NRM, they had submitted a request for international protection. Also, one (1) woman was identified holding a Police Note, while fourteen (14) women and three (3) men did not carry any legal document. Finally, nine (9) women and two (2) men are EU citizens.

The majority of the eighty-four (84) cases of victims who had a passport with a visa/or an entry stamp, are related to those of the above-mentioned organised criminal groups that operated in Greece and exploited, mainly, citizens of third countries who entered legally the territory with the possibility of a three-month stay. It is worth noting that in all these cases the victims became extra vulnerable due to the precarious condition they were in, after the end of the determined period of their legal stay in the country.

Residence Status - Adult Victims

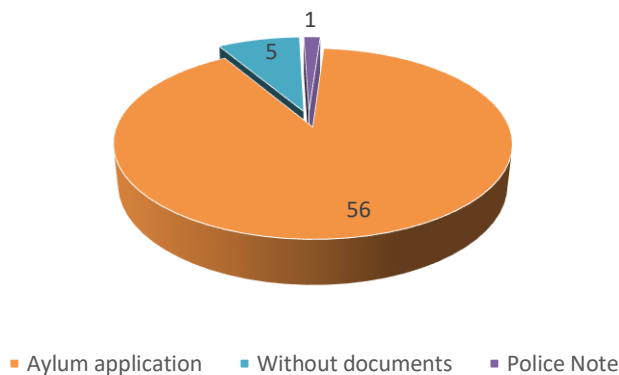

In the case of child victims, during their identification, the majority, thirty-seven (37) girls and nineteen (19) boys, were unaccompanied children who had applied for asylum. Only five (5) of the unaccompanied children did not hold legal documents and one (1) had a Police Note. Finally, twenty-three (23) girls and fifteen (15) boys are EU citizens.

Residence Status - Child Victims

Residence Status - Unaccompanied Child Victims

During 2023, ninety (90) reported victims were granted international protection in Greece, while three (3), initially lacking legal documentation, submitted their asylum claim. In seventeen (17) cases of adult victims, their legal status was discontinued, i.e. their asylum claim was rejected in second instance and they did not acquire any other type of residence status during the reporting period.

V. Educational level

The educational level of adult victims registered in the NRM is captured in the graph below, with the majority having received school education. The 31% of the victims for whom we have the relevant information have never attended school.

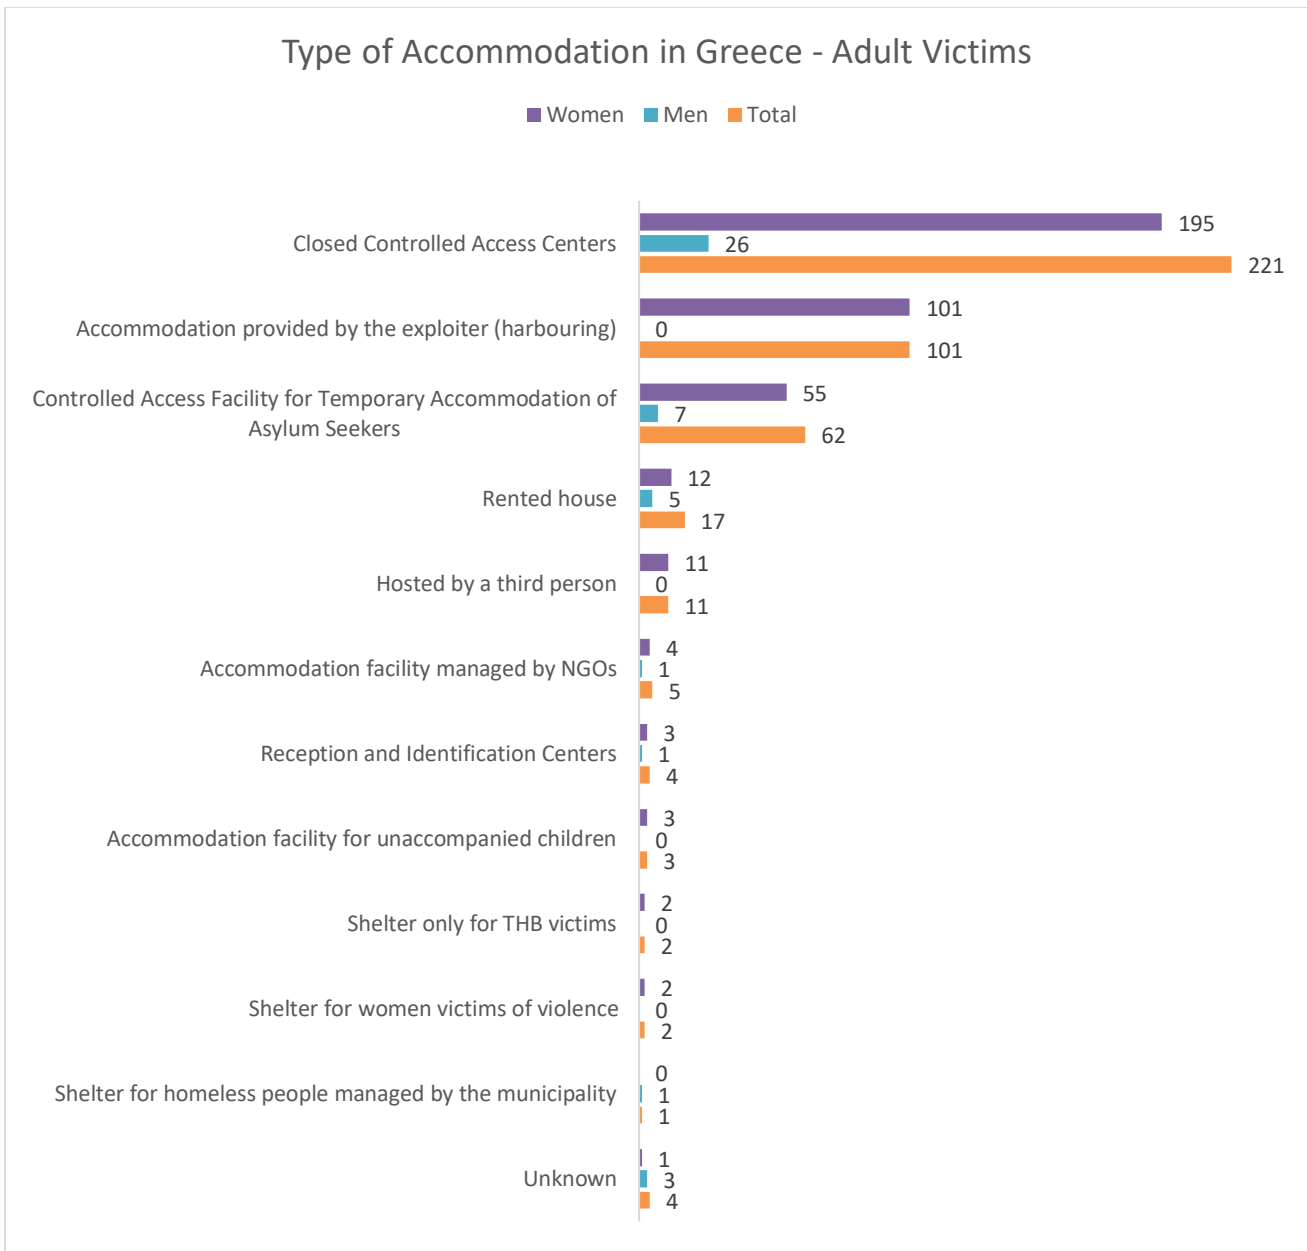

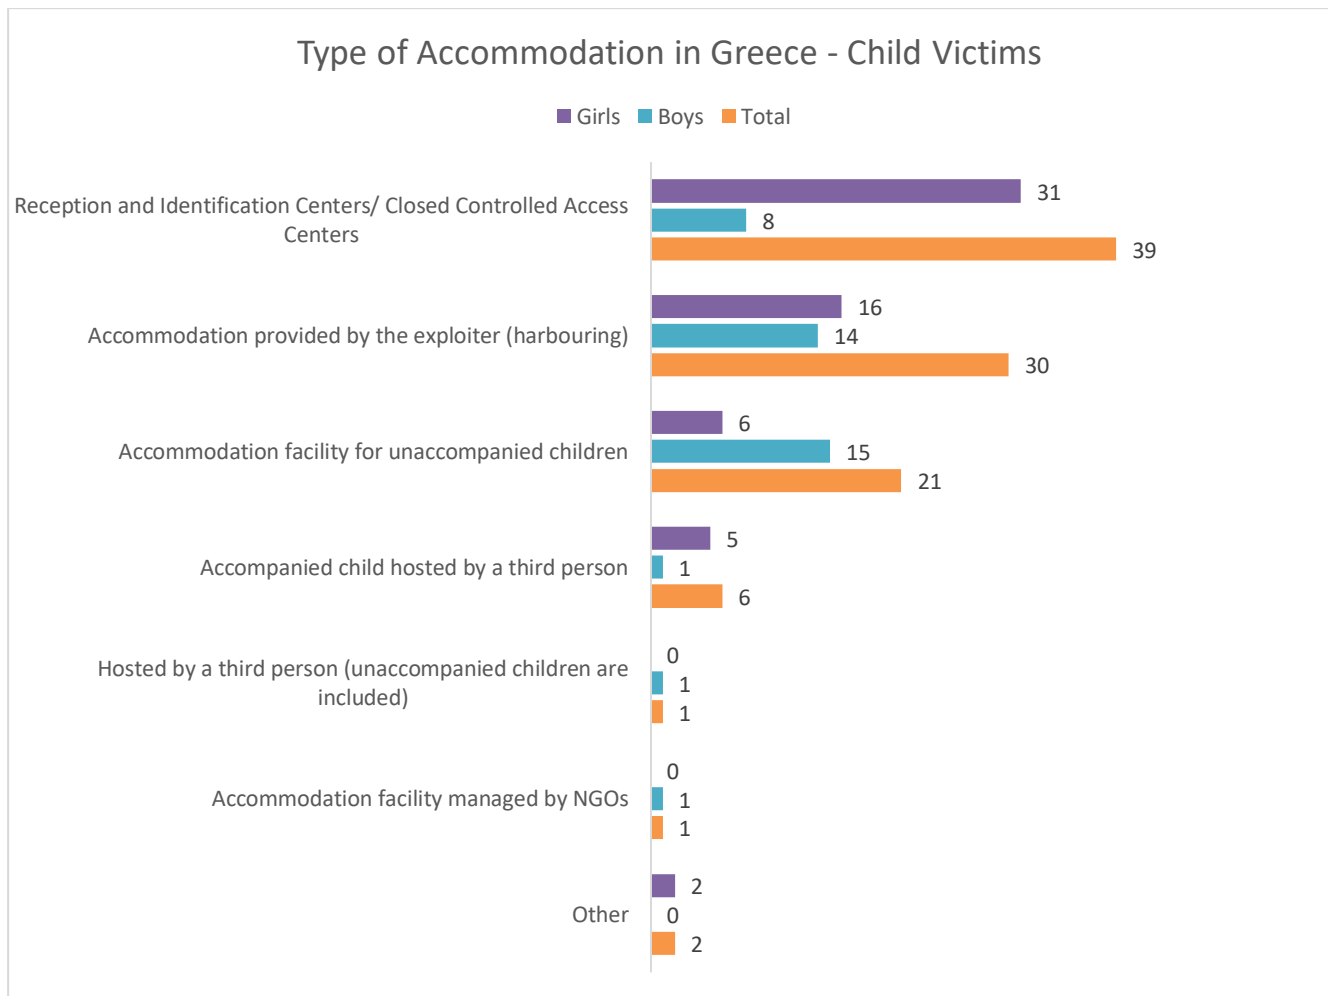

It should be noted that the graph above representing the education level of child victims only includes school age children, who are 6 years old and over. Almost all children that did not attend school (24 out of 26) were unaccompanied.

VI. Accommodation in Greece upon detection

The information on the place and type of accommodation - as well as the residence status - of the victims refers to the period they were detected and reported to the NRM. As it is seen in the graph below, the residence in most of the cases of adult victims is within the framework of the asylum applicants' reception (RICs, Closed Controlled Access Centres and CAFTAAS). Three (3) children identified as victims of trafficking but reported after becoming adults, were still residing to accommodation facilities for unaccompanied minors.

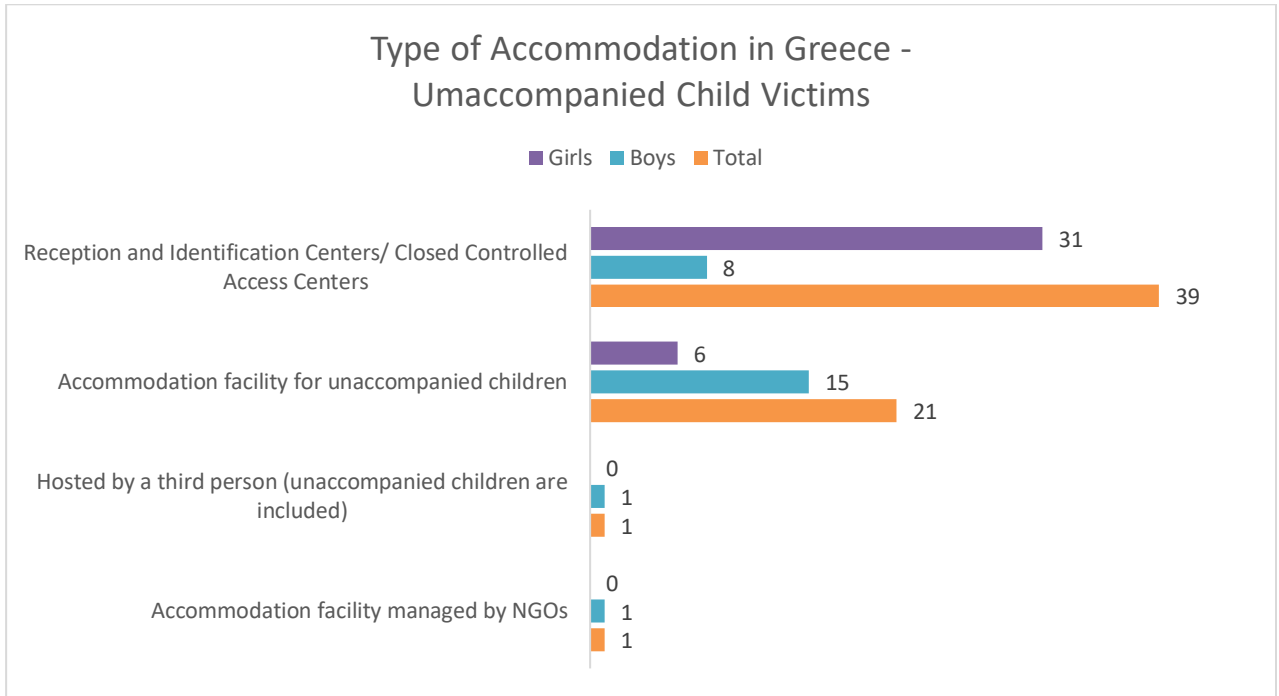

It must be noted that in the Reporting Form, the indication of the accommodation provision by the exploiter has been added, so that these cases can be reported separately, for a more accurate capture of the exploitation history, since this information concerns the action of harbouring. In this case, the one hundred and one (101) cases of adult victims reported to the NRM, after they escaped the situation of trafficking with the intervention of the Authorities, are related, in the vast majority, to the organised operations of the Hellenic Police and the dismantling of the aforementioned organised criminal groups.

Similarly, the vast majority of child victims whose accommodation was provided while being harboured, refers to victims of forced begging (29 in total) who were identified while being under exploitation and residing in apartments rented by their escorts or their (alleged) parents/perpetrators. In the category "Other", two (2) cases of emergency admission to Children's Hospital have been included, after the victims were rescued by the competent Authorities, in order for medical examinations and a social assessment to be carried out and the Public Prosecutor's Office to be informed.

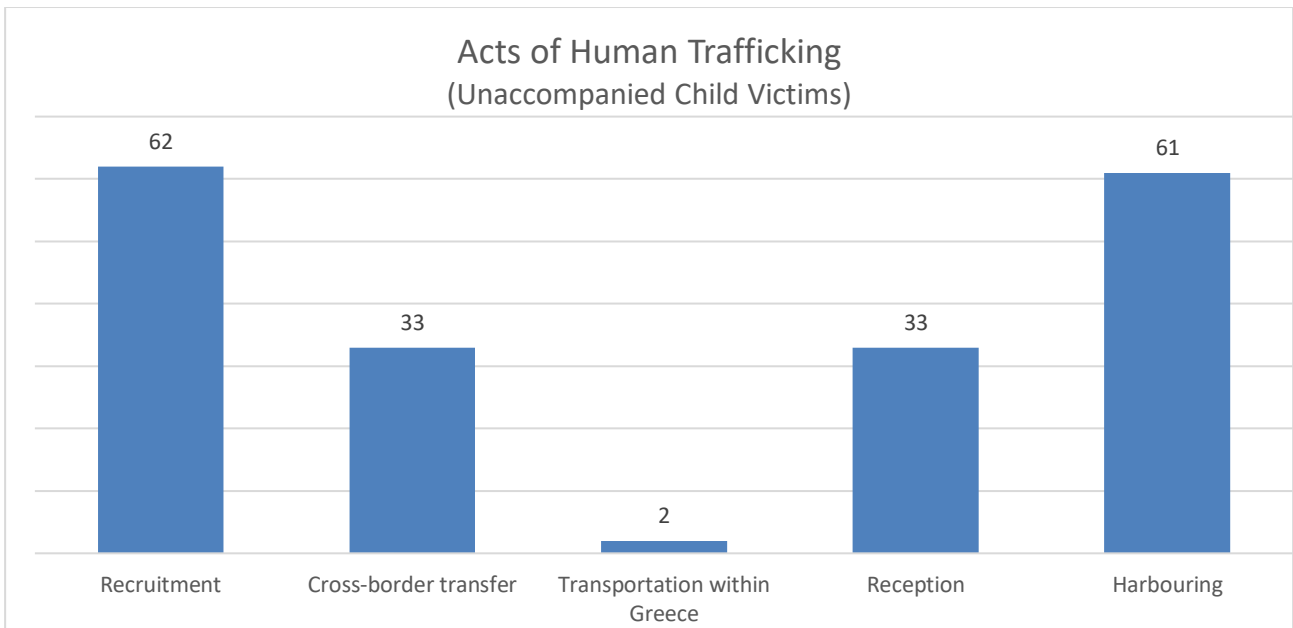

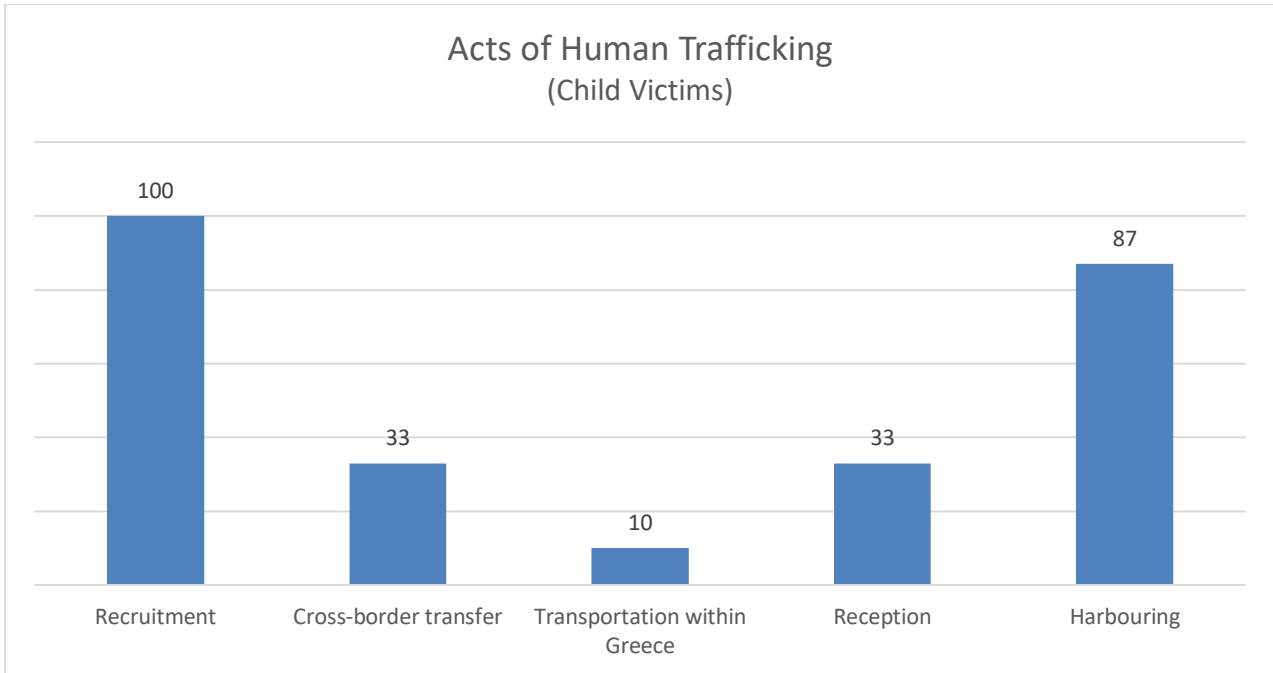

2. TRAFFICKING ACTS

The following graph depicts the trafficking acts that took place, as derived from the history of victims reported to the NRM. We should note that in every case more than one acts may have taken place as indicated below (e.g., recruitment, followed by transport, reception and harbouring).

It is interesting that the acts of recruitment and harbouring are very common, while in the case of adult victims, cross-border transportation and reception follow with a slightly lower frequency. The highly frequent recording of harbouring, i.e., providing a place for the victim to stay in so that they remain available for exploitation, is indicative of its effectiveness in relation to the control of the victim by the perpetrator. At the same time, the combination of the findings of cross-border transportation and the high number of asylum seekers is linked to the cross-border dimension of human trafficking, which follows migration/refugee routes. This is also supported by the data regarding child victims, as the acts of cross-border movement and reception concern exclusively unaccompanied children.

3. INFORMATION ON RECRUITMENT

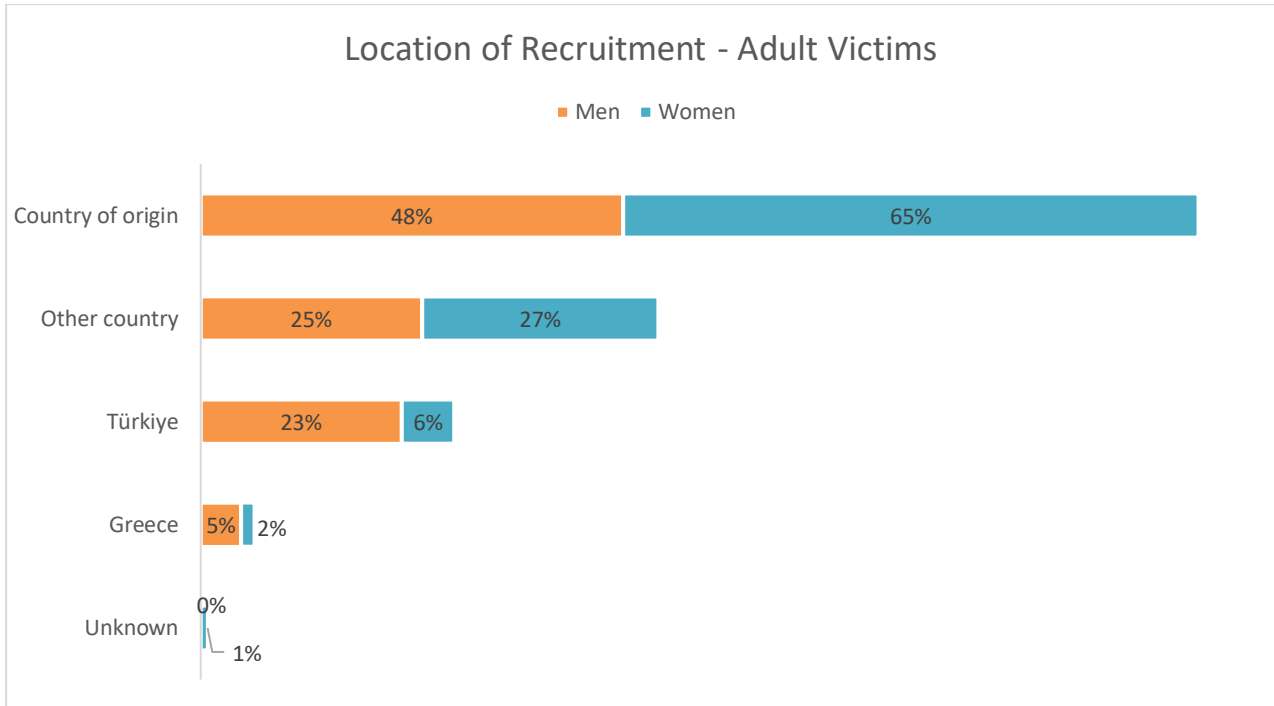

I. Country of Recruitment

Recruitment is one of the basic elements of human trafficking, which must be examined in depth, as it helps us to understand better this phenomenon. The recruitment means, along with the purpose of exploitation, reveal important information that can help the early identification of a victim and can be used for the prevention of the crime, through bringing awareness to vulnerable groups so that they can avoid being trapped during recruitment attempts and mitigate the factors that increase their vulnerability.

Similar to previous years' findings, the recruitment in most cases took place in the country of origin. It is worth mentioning that the vast majority of adult victims originating from South American countries were recruited in their country of origin (specifically Colombia and Venezuela), while a small percentage of them were recruited in their country of habitual residence (specifically Spain and Italy). Also, the majority of female victims from the DR Congo, Cameroon, Somalia and Eritrea, were recruited in their country of origin.

The category «Greece» refers to cases of citizens of other countries that were recruited in Greece (8 adults and 6 children) and not victims of Greek citizenship, who are included to the category "recruited in their Country of Origin". In this context, only three (3) cases of Greek women who were recruited in Greece were reported, while of the total number of child victims whose place of recruitment was their country of origin (81), almost half were of Greek origin who were recruited in Greece.

Recruitment in countries outside the country of origin is common for both genders. Türkiye, as in the previous years, continues to be frequently mentioned as a recruitment location among the "Other countries" listed, so it is given a special mention in the charts. Especially in the case of male victims, Türkiye has been reported in ten (10) cases out of a total of forty-four (44), while other countries, except the country of origin, show significantly smaller percentages. However, in the case of female victims, the same trend is not observed in 2023. On the contrary, the percentage of female victims who were recruited in other countries, except Türkiye, is increased. A typical example is, as mentioned previously, the significant number of cases of victims from Sierra Leone (almost 1/3 of the total number of victims coming from that country), who were recruited in Guinea.

For the vast majority of child victims, it is clear that the place of recruitment is their country of origin, including children from Greece, as already mentioned.

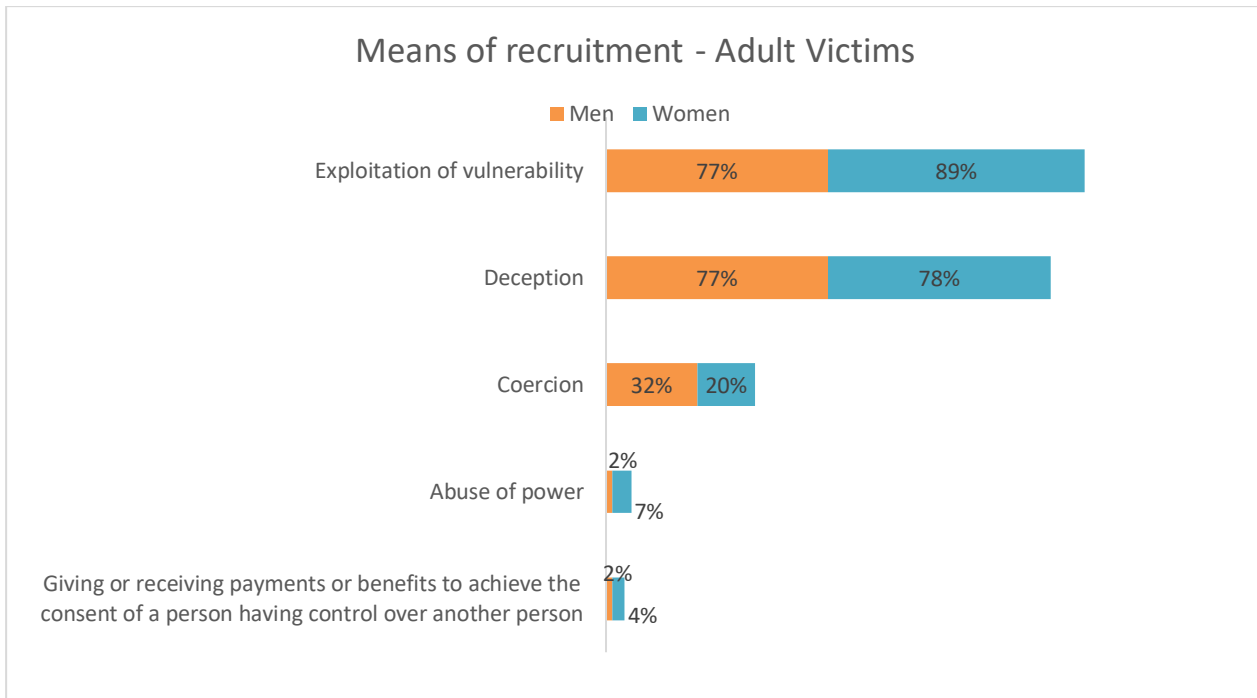

II. Means of recruitment

It should be stressed that usually more than one means of committing human trafficking acts is used, and specifically that of the recruitment act. It is also observed that, in cases of adult victims, during recruitment the means of deception comes second, with a very minor distance from the means of exploitation of the vulnerable situation. This might mean the combination of those two in several cases. It seems, therefore, that the vulnerable state which the victims already experience, is what makes their deception easier while recruited by the perpetrators.

In cases where deception is used as a means of recruitment, it is more frequently linked to the type and conditions of employment. Furthermore, the problematic family situation constitutes the condition of vulnerability that the perpetrators mainly take advantage of, in order to recruit their victims. Finally, the most common means of coercing adult victims is the use or threat of use of violence.

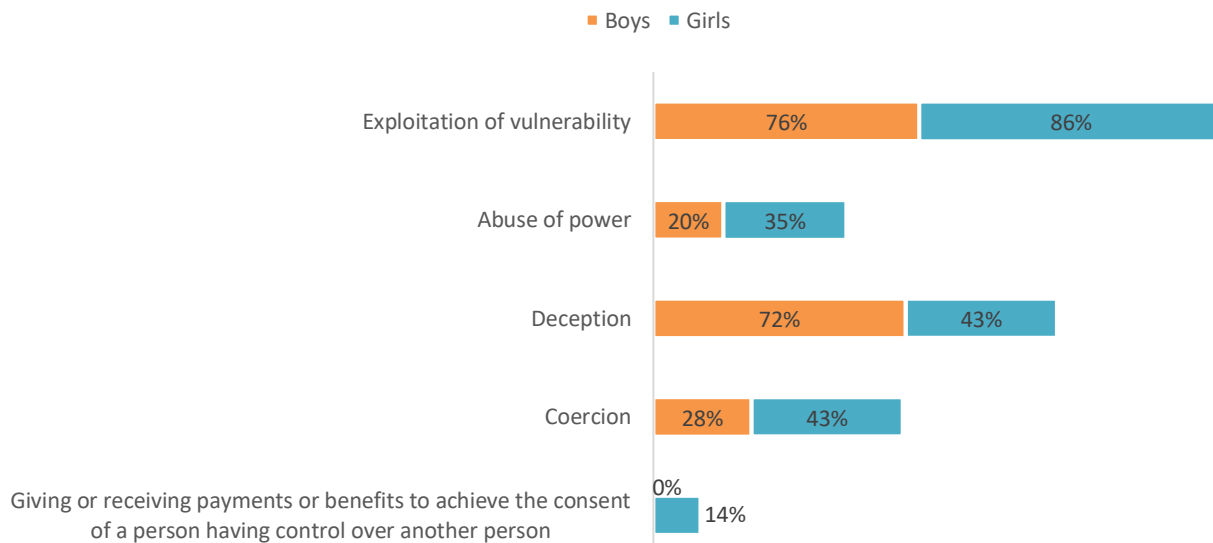

The following graph depicts data that regard child victims, even though in their case, the detection of trafficking means is not required. Nevertheless, the relevant data is useful for understanding the specific ways of action during children’s recruitment. It is obvious that childhood is by definition a vulnerability exploited by the recruiters, while the “abuse of power” is connected to the exploitation by the parents, mainly in cases of exploitation of begging (24) and forced marriage (11).

Means of recruitment - Child Victims

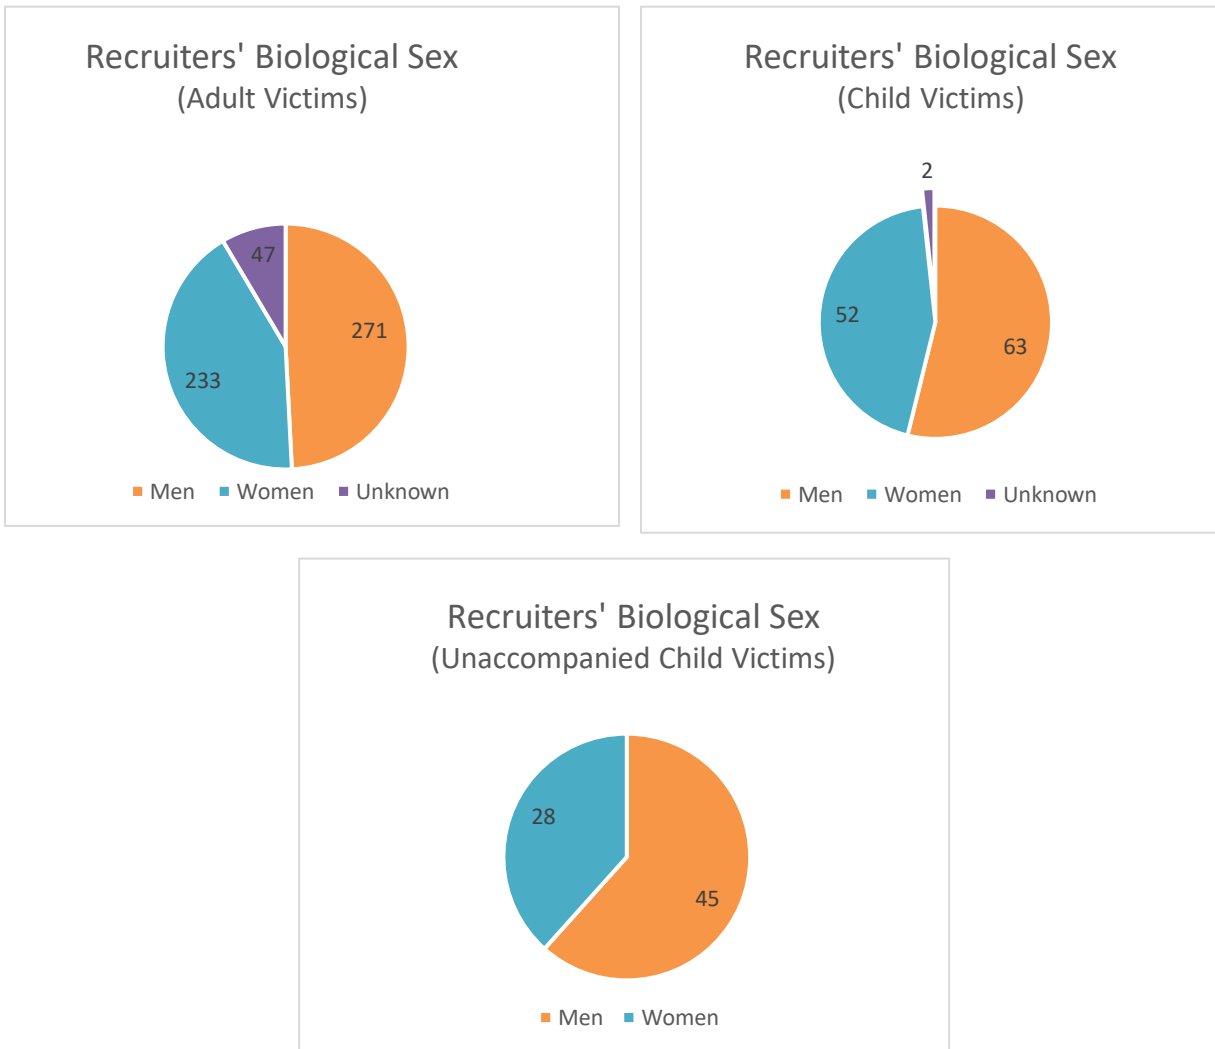

Means of recruitment - Unaccompanied Child Victims

III. Information on Recruiter/s

The following graphs depict information regarding the profile of the recruiters and their relation to the victims. In one hundred and eighteen (118) cases of adult victims and seventeen (17) of child victims that recruitment was reported as an act, the recruiters were two persons. Similarly, there were eleven (11) cases of unaccompanied child victims with two recruiters.

Regarding the gender of the recruiters, it is observed that, for both adult and child victims, the proportion of male to female recruiters is almost equal, with a slight precedence of male perpetrators. In particular, in the case of children, numbers are the same for men and women, which can be attributed to the fact that in many cases the recruiters are family members - both their parents (34 cases) or relatives (24 cases) - as shown in the "Relationship between recruiter and child victim" chart below.

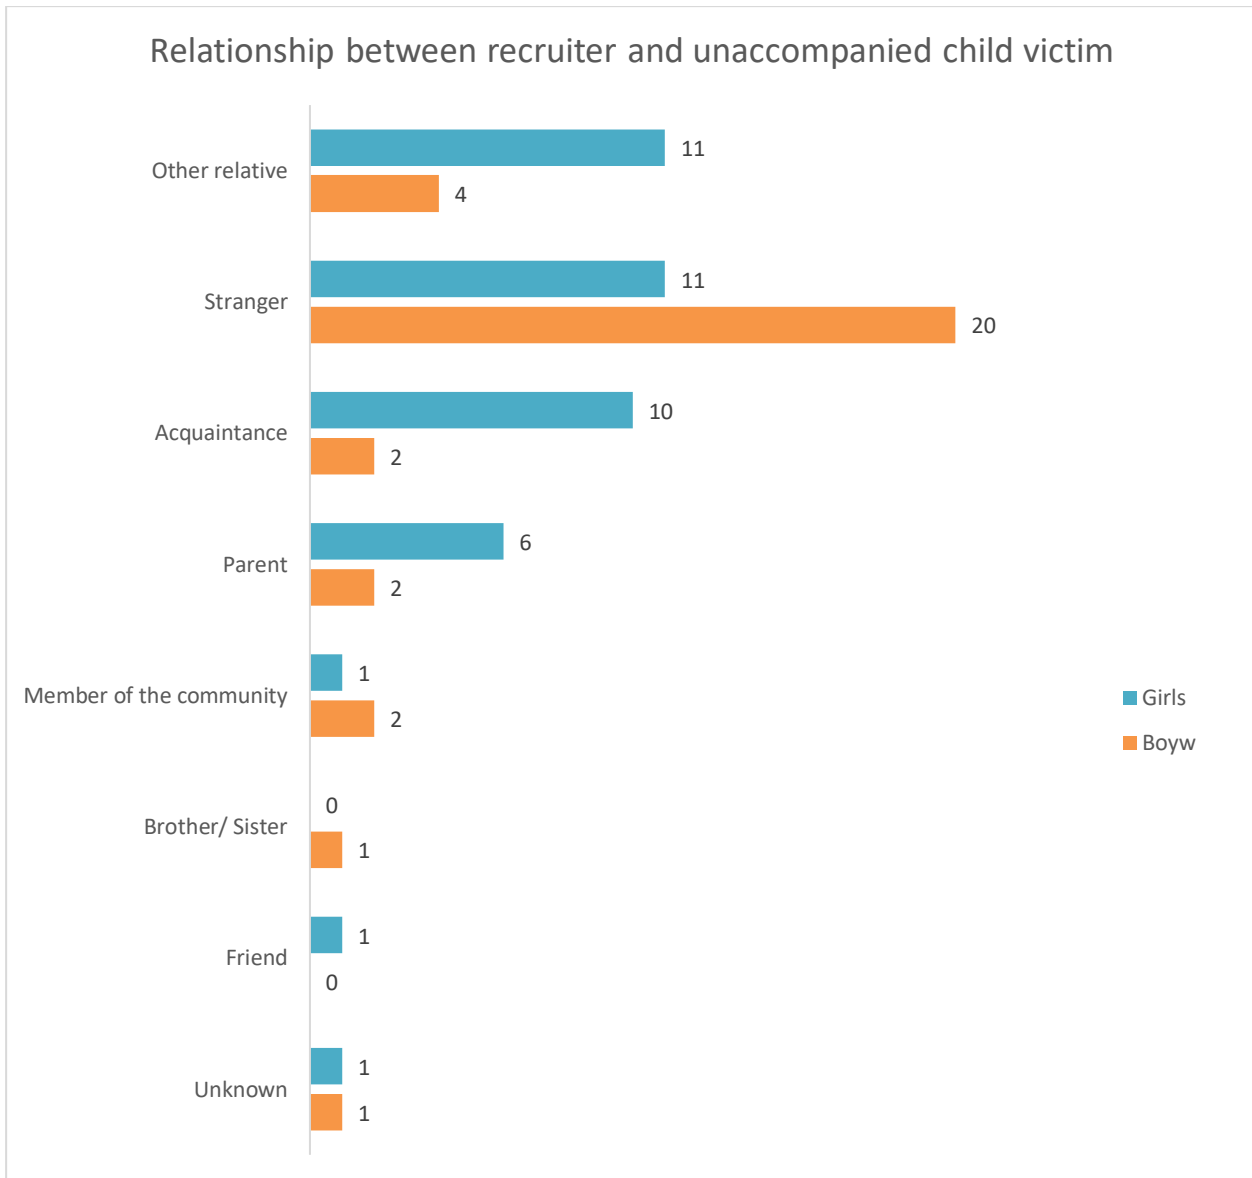

The following graphs show how often the nationality of the victim is the same as the nationality of the recruiter. This finding is in alignment with the finding that recruitment often takes place in the country of origin. One could say that it is more common - as it is also easier - for a victim to be approached and recruited by a co-national.

Regarding the relationship of the recruiter/s with the adult victims, it seems that for a percentage higher than 50%, the victims were not personally acquainted with their recruiters. It is worth mentioning that in many cases, although the recruiters were not acquainted with the victims, there was a particular recruitment context; there were cases reported in which the victim came in contact with their respective recruiter with the encouragement/mediation of a familiar to the victim person, but without their (the victim) considering that the latter was deceitful, and therefore recognising them as involved in the recruitment. In addition, the same category includes cases of recruiters who had the role of smuggler, i.e. the initial approach of the victim aimed at facilitating illegal border crossing, but also cases where the recruiters acted in the context of employment agencies in which the victim applied to receive the relevant services, or through the internet (social media or employment advertising sites).

The following graphs show the role structure of the people involved in this crime. In most of adult victims' cases, recruiters appear to play more than one role, with the majority of them also involved either in the victims' transfer (mainly cross-border) or their exploitation. Nevertheless, it is also common that the recruiter plays no other role. On the other hand, in the case of child victims, it appears that recruiters and exploiters are more frequently the same persons which leads to the conclusion of being members of smaller groups, who tend to participate in all steps of trafficking operation.

On the other hand, in the case of child victims, it appears that recruiters and exploiters often coincide which leads to the conclusion of their being individual perpetrators or members of smaller groups, who tend to participate in all steps of human trafficking operation.

In most cases of adult victims, as shown in the graph below, recruiters were reported as acquainted with each other while in children’s case the majority of recruiters were reported as being couples, a fact that relates to cases of parents-recruiters.¹¹

¹¹ We should note that in one hundred and eighteen (118) cases of adult victims and in seventeen (17) cases of child victims, two recruiters were mentioned.

Relationship between recruiters (Adult Victims)

Relationship between recruiters (Child Victims)

Relationship between recruiters (Unaccompanied Child Victims)

4. INFORMATION ON EXPLOITATION

In the majority of cases (414), the victims (333 adults and 81 children) were exploited for the first time. For forty-two (42) cases, their reported exploitation was not the first one to ever take place (including 2 children). In seventy-seven (77) cases (60 adults, 17 children) the relevant information remains unspecified.

I. Forms of Exploitation

Sexual exploitation remains the main form of exploitation in the NRM reported cases.

In thirty-nine (39) cases – eight (8) involve children -, the victims were subjected to multiple forms of exploitation. Among the adult victims' cases, where more than one forms of exploitation were reported (17 out of 31 in total), these were referring to sexual and labour exploitation (industrial sector, domestic work/care of persons, catering sector, servitude and slavery¹²). As the second more frequent combination labour exploitation and forced marriage was recorded.

¹² Slavery regarded the trading (purchase) of the victim, which was classified as such and it refers to the exercise any or all of the powers attaching to the right of ownership over the person as stated in the article 1, para.1 of the International Slavery Convention (1926)

II. Biological sex and age of victims per form of exploitation

As shown in the graphs below, trafficking in human beings for sexual exploitation is a gender-specific phenomenon – a form of gender-based violence - as the vast majority of victims are women and girls. The most frequent type of sexual exploitation is prostitution in brothels, while two (2) cases involving the use of pornographic material were also reported. On the other hand, labour exploitation concerns the majority of male victims, but also occurs in a large percentage of female victims (30%). The most frequent types of labour exploitation are in the agricultural and construction sectors. It should be noted that twenty-one (21) cases involved victims of exploitation of surrogacy, which were categorized by the Authorities as a form of labour exploitation. Domestic work (90 cases) either in the country of origin or in another country (not in Greece), is also an interesting finding.

Form of Exploitation - Male Adult Victims

In the case of child victims reported to the NRM, it is noticed that the largest share concerns, as mentioned previously, girls who are victims of sexual exploitation. For boys, as for men, the most frequent form is labour exploitation. Second most frequent form – which was reported mainly taking place in Greece – for both genders, is the exploitation of begging.

III. Means of control

Based on the data recorded, it is noticed that in most cases more than one means of control have been used during exploitation, with coercion and exploitation of vulnerability being the most common ones. Therefore, as in previous years, data shows that while in the initial phase of recruitment there is a strong tendency to involve the adult victim who is in a vulnerable situation, in a more covert and seemingly non-violent way (deception by co-nationals), in the phase of exploitation, coercion is more often used as a means of control, in order to force the victim to cooperate, since at that point the victim has obviously realized the real purpose of the exploiter(s).

However, in the case of children, another predominant means of control is the abuse of power, as it is linked to the exploitation of children by a relative, as depicted below.

IV. Information on the exploiter/s

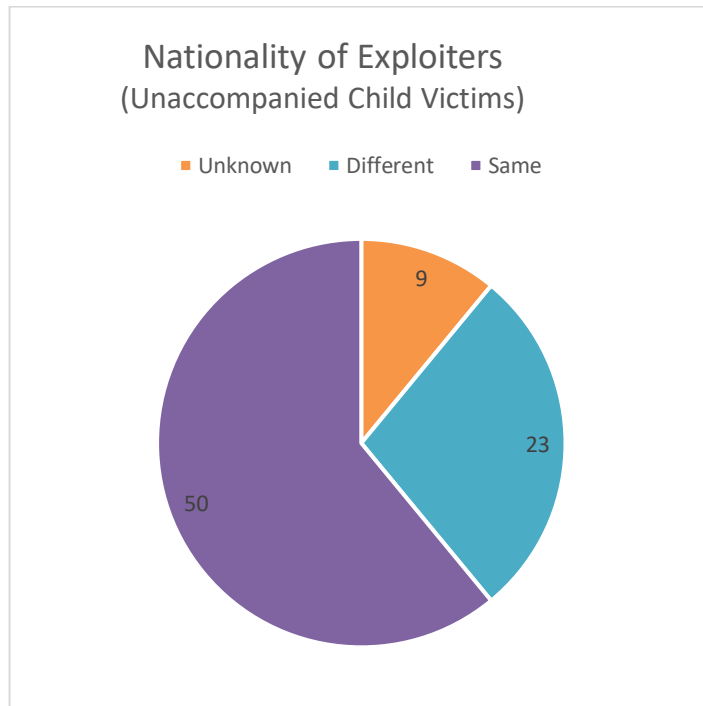

The following graphs provide information on the exploiters' profile, as well as their relation to the victims. In two hundred and nine (209) cases, two (2) persons were reported as exploiters (183 cases of adult κατ 26 cases of child victims, out of which 20 were unaccompanied children).

The majority of exploiters is men, although the number of women is also significant.

Most cases reported, where victims and exploiters are of the same nationality, refer to those of child exploitation of begging by the (alleged) parent or (alleged) relative.

In the majority of adult as well as child victims' cases, the exploiter/s is/are completely strangers to the victim. The cases of exploiters who had the role of a smuggler are reported separately under the "Other" category, i.e. the initial approach of the victim aimed at facilitating illegal border crossing.

In the majority of the cases that there was more than one person involved in the exploitation and the victim was able to provide information on their relation, the two exploiters were reported as spouses/partners.

Relationship between exploiters (Child Victims)

Relationship between exploiters (Unaccompanied Child Victims)

V. Countries where the exploitation took place

It should be noted that most adult victims detected during 2023 were exploited abroad; the vast majority refers to cases of exploitation within the context of migration routes, especially those having taken place in Türkiye, that is why it is depicted separately in the graph. In the phase of recruitment already, Türkiye stands out as a country that recruitment takes place, but here it is obvious that it outnumbers all other countries recorded as locations where the exploitation took place, before the arrival of victims in Greece.

It is, also, clarified that under the category of the ‘country of origin’ as the place of exploitation, three (3) women and thirty-five (35) children of Greek nationality are included in the respective graphs.

A total of one hundred and sixty (160) people were found to have been exploited in Greece – one hundred and eighteen (118) adults, of which three (3) are of Greek origin, and forty-two (42) children of which thirty-five (35) is of Greek origin –. It is worth mentioning that the number of reported victims who were exploited in Greece in 2023 has tripled compared to the previous year (51 cases for 2022).

Place of exploitation - Male Adult Victims

Place of exploitation - Female Child Victims

Place of exploitation - Male child victims

It has already been mentioned that the majority of child victims in Greece were victims of exploitation of begging. Only four (4) unaccompanied children (boys) have been identified as victims of exploitation in Greece, specifically in the form of labour exploitation in the agricultural sector (3 cases) and exploitation of criminal activities (1 case). Regarding unaccompanied child victims, the country of origin and Türkiye were mentioned as the most frequent place of exploitation in equal number of cases.

Place of exploitation - Unaccompanied Child Victims (Female)

The following two graphs show cases of victims – both adults and children – whose exploitation took place either in Greece or in Greece and abroad (in the latter case, the form of exploitation reported is the one that took place in Greece). It is reminded that the forms of exploitation having taken place could be more than one in each case.

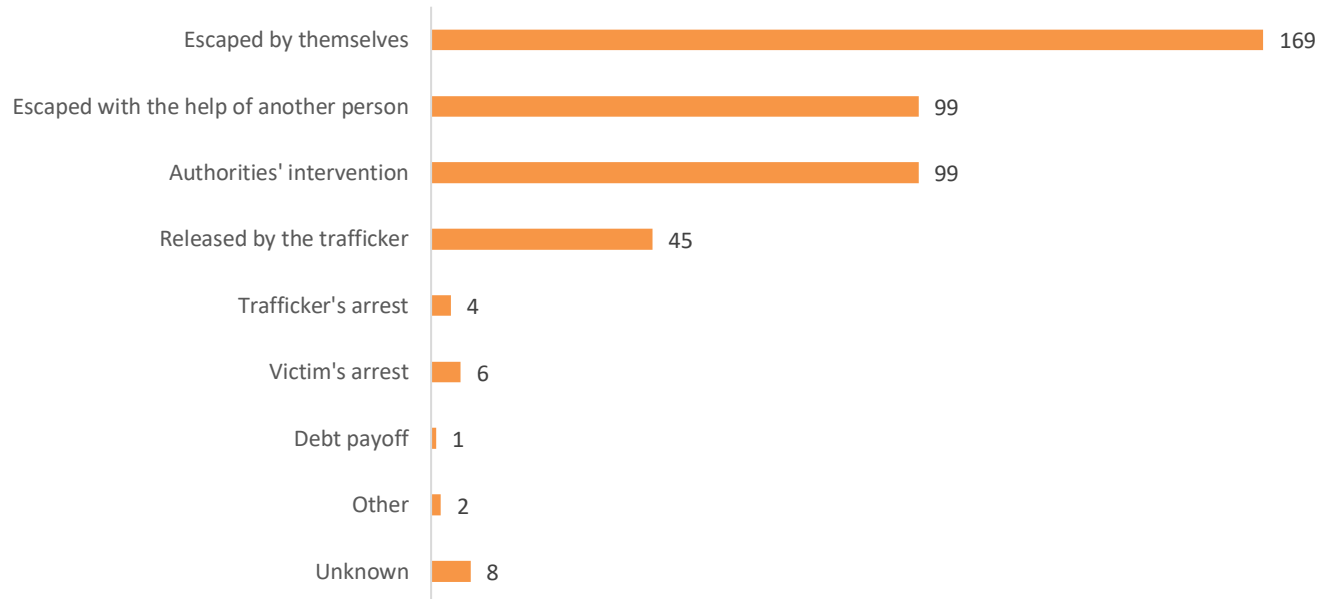

In light of the above, the most common form of exploitation among children, regardless of their biological sex, continues to be the exploitation of begging, while in the case of adult victims, sexual exploitation for women and labour exploitation for men are more prevalent. However, there is also a significant number of cases of labour exploitation among female victims, of which the majority (21 cases) concern victims of surrogacy exploitation, as mentioned previously.

VI. Ways of escaping trafficking condition

All victims reported to the NRM during the reporting period have escaped the trafficking situation.

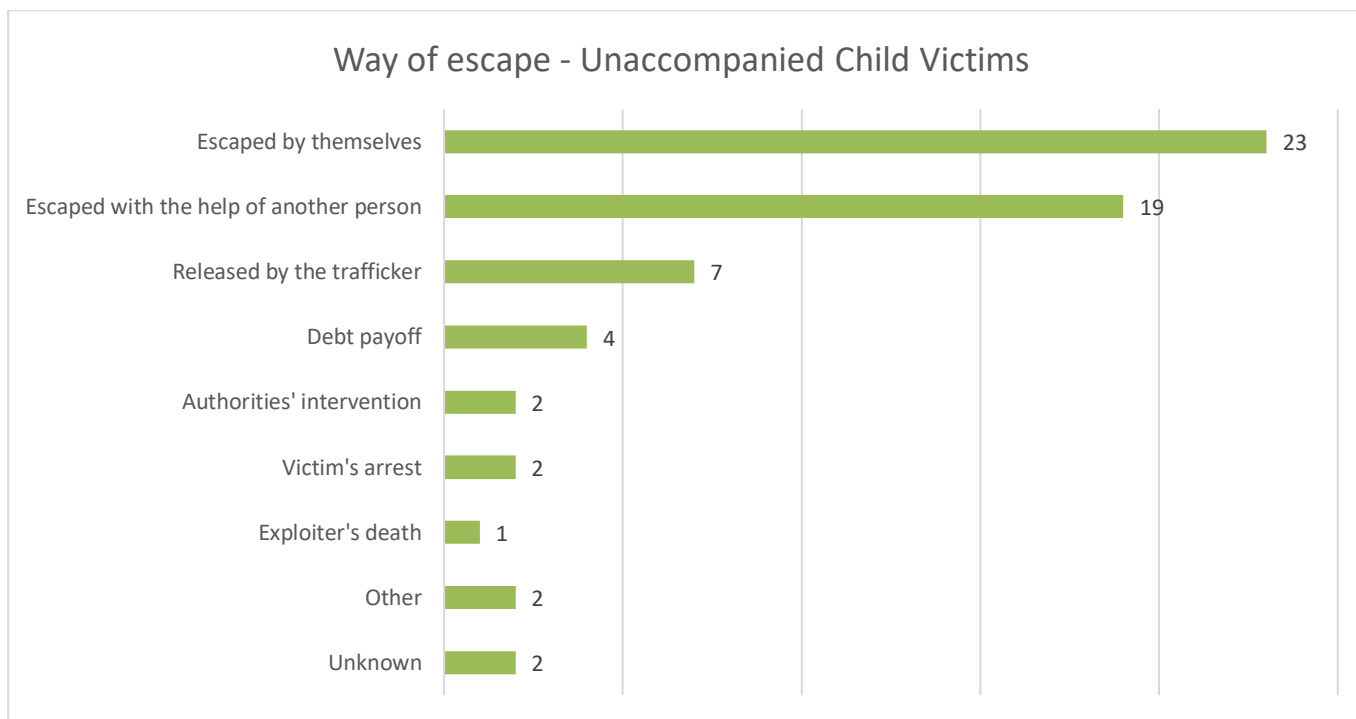

The following were recorded as ways of escape:

Way of escape - Adult Victims

Way of escape - Child Victims

There are more cases where the adult victim escaped on their own, but the large number of children as well as adult victims who escaped with the help of a third party is worth mentioning, as it demonstrates the need to continue and intensify efforts to raise public awareness of the issue, since citizens may even be instrumental in locating a victim. Important, without a doubt, was the targeted investigations of the Authorities within 2023, which led to the dismantling of criminal organisations and the identification of adult as well as child victims while being trafficked, as already mentioned, but also the arrest of individual perpetrators, mostly regarding cases of forced begging, within the context of patrols or following relevant reporting to the Authorities.

VII. Procedure of Granting Victim Status

Human trafficking victims are granted status as such with the issuance of an order by the Public Prosecutor, as provided for by law.¹³

The graphs below show the stage of the procedure for 2023 cases, as reported by the end of the reporting period.

¹³ The said order is issued after the initiation of prosecution, or before that with the submission of a written opinion before the Public Prosecutor as a prerequisite (Article 4, para. 1, ia, Law No 5038/2023). In other words, victims can be granted status both in case of reporting the offence before the competent Authority and in case they do not wish to proceed with it, on the condition that they submit the said opinion, as provided for by law in the context of the so-called social path alternative.

Procedure of granting victim status - Adult Victims

Procedure of granting victim status - Child Victims

For eighty-three (83) new cases the procedure has been initiated. Of those the majority refer to victims detected by the Hellenic Police and have come to the Public Prosecutor's notice in the course of the initiation of criminal proceedings against perpetrators of human trafficking or other related offences (e.g. child pornography). There is a small number of cases (4 in total) for which the procedure of granting victim status has been initiated with the submission of a written opinion before the competent Authority, as provided for by law in the context of the so-called social path alternative; those cases refer to victims who did not wish to report the offence before the Prosecuting Authorities.

Five (5) victims were granted victim status after filing a report on the offence before the Hellenic Police; in all those cases human trafficking had taken place in Greece under the form of sexual exploitation.

None of these cases refer to unaccompanied asylum-seeking children. One (1) case refers to a victim who had been granted victim status with a definite time-limit by a Public Prosecutor’s order in the past; it was during 2023, though, that an extension of the protective effect of the said order was granted until completion of relevant criminal proceeding, following a relevant request.

Nevertheless, in the majority of cases (404 in total) the procedure has not been initiated; those cases mostly refer to victims who had been exploited abroad in the past. In cases where the information on the stage of the procedure has been reported as unknown, it is most likely that the procedure has not been initiated yet, however, no further information on this is available.

No cases in which a *reflection period*¹⁴ for the victim was granted were reported.

5. VICTIM PARTICIPATION in CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS

I. Victim consent to collaborating with the Authorities

Victims’ consensual collaboration with the Authorities only refers to adult victims, as reported during the reporting period.

¹⁴ The reflection period for victims, as provided for by law, refers to a definite period of time, before or after the completion of the procedure of granting victim status, so as for the victim to disconnect from perpetrator(s), recover, physically and/or mentally, and receive an informed decision on whether they will report the offence before the competent Authority (Article 135, Law No 5038/2023).

Out of seventy-five (75) cases in which victims were reported to have consented to collaborate with the Authorities, sixty-one (61) include victims who filed a complaint before the relevant Authority, the vast majority of which (46 cases) refer to cases detected by the Hellenic Police, during an organised operation or a patrol. The rest refer to cases where the victim either escaped from an exploitative situation and self-reported the offence before the Authorities (6) or was supported with protection services and/or accompanied by professionals before the Authorities in order to file a complaint (9).

In fourteen (14) cases where victims have expressed their willingness to collaborate with the Authorities, no criminal proceedings have been initiated yet.

As for those cases (125 in total) in which victims have objected to collaborating with the Authorities, it should be noted that in sixty-six (66) the exploitation had taken place abroad, while the vast majority of the victims reported were asylum seekers. In fifty-five (55) cases victims - all of which were foreign citizens and had been exploited in Greece - were detected by the Hellenic Police during organised operations, however they did not further collaborate with the Authorities. In sixteen (16) cases victims mentioned fear, reluctance and/or mental health issues as reasons for not having consented to collaborate with the Authorities.

As in previous years, there is a high number of reporting forms in which the victim's consent to collaborate with the Authorities has been registered as unknown information; this raises questions on whether victims show reluctance in participating in criminal proceedings, especially at the early stages of their identification, or whether this lack of information is related to professionals not prioritising the initiation of the relevant procedure, for the majority of victims have proceeded with submitting an asylum claim awaiting response. Nevertheless, while monitoring the ongoing provision of protection services to the victims, there is always the possibility of reassessing the relevant information, as the question remains open.

II. Victim participation in criminal proceedings

During the reporting period, in ninety-nine (99) reported cases criminal proceedings were initiated.

| CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS – PENDING CASES in 2023 | | | | |
|--|-------------------------|------------------|--------------------------------|---------------|
| COMPLAINT FILED before the POLICE | PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION | PRE-TRIAL STAGE | PENDING FIRST-INSTANCE HEARING | UNKNOWN STAGE |
| 14 | 3 | 47 ¹⁵ | 2 | 33 |

The vast majority of those cases refer to victims exploited in Greece and detected by the Hellenic Police, during an organised operation or a patrol.

In thirty-three (33) cases, the proceedings stage remains unknown as there are no updates available.

Out of all 99 cases, thirty-eight (38) refer to child victims, who in their vast majority were Greek citizens forced into begging, whereas no cases of unaccompanied children with an ongoing criminal case in relation to human trafficking were reported.

In one (1) case reported the victim themselves were prosecuted on the grounds of criminal offences committed by them while being under exploitation

In twenty-two (22) cases victims are being represented by legal counsellors working in NGOs, in five (5) by a private lawyer, whereas for the rest of the cases there is no information available.

6. PROTECTION

The following graph illustrates the number of victims that were reported to the NRM within 2023 (new cases) and the kind of protection services they received throughout the year, by the Actors that in the vast majority are integrated in the Mechanism.

It is noted that in the context of reporting new cases to the NRM, at the time of their identification, information on the demographics of each victim is recorded, which are taken into account to ensure the provision of targeted protection services. Based on this record, for the year 2023, seventy-three (73) women were with their children in Greece, while twenty-four (24) were in a state of confirmed pregnancy, at the time of the submission of the report. Also, from the unaccompanied child victims of trafficking, two (2) girls were pregnant and five (5) were with their children in Greece.

¹⁵ There are fifty-nine (59) cases which have not been included, as they refer to victims who had not been yet detected by the Hellenic Police nor had they received any protection services, and as such they had not been referred to the NRM, during the reporting period. However, these cases have been included in a case-file referring to one of the aforementioned criminal groups dismantled by the Hellenic Police.

In the first level services, as in the older open cases, the services of accommodation in combination to psychosocial (and material) support and medical care remain predominant to adults as well as for children.

Nevertheless, the comparatively lower number of cases that legal assistant was provided (in the form of counseling and/or representation, either in the context of criminal proceedings or the one during the asylum application examination) highlights the need of strengthening these services, aiming to the unconditional access to the foreseen victims’ rights and their further effective protection. Finally, it is noted that, as in the previous years, the majority of victims is accommodated within RIS facilities, which coincides with their profile as asylum seekers.

With regard to social integration services, the most frequent support for adults is in finding a job, while for children is the learning of Greek (in the context of informal education) and the inclusion in the school system. The number of victims who received social integration services, compared to the total number of victims reported, remains low.

Within 2023, the safe and voluntary repatriation (in countries of South America, Morocco, Uzbekistan, Romania and Bulgaria) of twenty-five (25) women took place, with the assistance of non-governmental organisations, including a mother with two (2) children. Additionally, five (5) women returned to their previous place of residence within the EU, while one (1) woman was relocated to an EU country as well in the context of the relevant programme run by MoMA.

The Actors that provided protection services to presumed victims of trafficking from January 2023 to December 2023, either after they identified a victim themselves or after a victim was referred to them by the Identification actor, based on the Reporting and Protection Services Monitoring Forms that were submitted to the NRM throughout this period, are the following:
